Summary

In the last week the prime minister said she would trigger Article 50, the clause needed to start the European Union exit process, by the end of March 2017, which means the UK is likely to leave the EU by mid 2019.

As a result of this announcement the pound drifted down slightly but the FTSE-100 continues to rise, now more than 15% higher than this year's low in February.

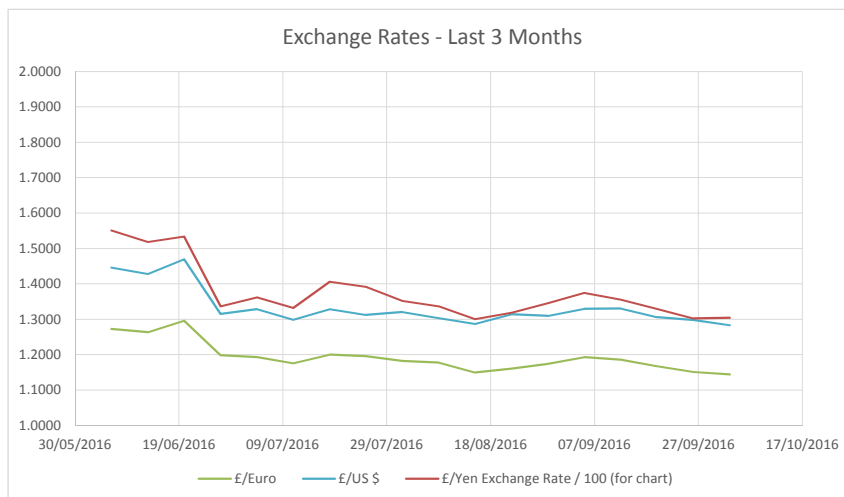

Expect crude oil prices to increase in future months as Opec have recently reached a broad level of agreement on production controls.
